AFTER DINNER MATCH A FLUKE

G. PATTERSON EARLY GIVES UP AFTER FEW ROUNDS.

Resents the Interruptions of the Atlantic Yacht Club's Younger Members and His Opponent, J. Clarence Harvey,

The Atlantic Yacht Club tried to pull off an oratorical set-to for points last night between G. Paterson Early of Pittsburg, the Jimmy Britt of post-prandial oratory, and J. Clarence Harvey of New York, the Abe Attell of the black coffee cups.

The event was to have been for the after dinner championship of the Atlantic coast, and there was heavy preliminary betting. Mr. Early, it was reported, was training with Chauncey M. Depew, with whom he went three swift anecdotes every morning; while Mr. Harvey was in the hands of Sime on Ford, with whom he ran through a half hour of hard joking daily.

The contest looked like a wonder on paper. The Atlantics roped off a corner of the dining room for a ring; they had Marie Dressler, John E. Hazzard and others to get the audience in a good humor. When Referee John L. Golden called the men to their corners and cried "Let 'er go!" it all looked very much to the merry. It would ever been a guest of honor at the Gridiron Club

Mr. Early, trained to the minute, was first on the floor. "Concerning the brevity of life and the uncertainty of our destination," said Mr. Farly, "considering how much more sorrow than joy there is in the world, I hold it to be a duty to give you all the joy I can. I have chosen for my subject 'Casabianca,' the boy who stood on the burning deck, whose heroism illumines with classic candle-power the pages of history, whose mellifluousnessa word I never pronounce unless I am sober-whose mellifluousness I say-

"The burning deck was a hot proposition. Did he hotfoot it away?" "No!" howled the audience.

"Was there a disposition on his part to go way back and sit down?"

"Never!" cried the Atlantics. "Three times no!" said the orator.

"No no no!" cried the audience. Mr. Early stopped and glared for a min-

Then he proceeded to treat in detail of the boy, the rigging, the fire and the stokehole. "Time!" velled the referee. Mr. Early, however, begged for a few minutes more, and especially requested the gentlemen in the back of the room to pay him respectful attention. "I'll grant the gentleman another punch," said Mr. Harvey. So Mr. Early kept after Casabianca. "Beautiful and bright he stood. He could be bright without the aid of the lime-"Time!" yelled the audience.

"His sense of duty --- " went on Mr.

He said:

Mr. Harvey rested his fight on that one punch and withdrew. The audience called it a draw, though there were some who maintained that Mr. Early threw up the sponge and lost automatically.

RUNAWAY BOILER KILLS MAN. He Tried to Stop It by Grabbing a Wheel of the Truck. One man was killed and two buildings were damaged by a twenty-seven ton boiler on a runaway truck at Amsterdam avenue and 134th street last night. A number of children narrowly escaped being hurt. The truck and boiler finally crashed into a five story flat house and turned over.

The boiler was being used by a contractor doing some excavating on Amsterdam avenue between 134th and 135th streets. It was necessary to move the boiler a few feet and it was put on a truck. A rope was attached to the truck and two horses started to pull it to the street, at the top of one of the steepest hills in the city. There was no brake on the truck, which started down the hill at full speed. The horses became frightened and ran away. With the horses pulling and no steering gear to manage it the truck zigzagged from one side of the street to the other.

A number of children were playing in the street and their mothers rushed to save them. A trolley car filled with passengers just missed being struck.

The driver of the truck, Matthew Thornton of 183 East 117th street, deserted his horses. Joseph Olive, 35 years old, a watchman, of 535 West 133d street, grabbed of the front wheels in an effort to steer the truck. He was thrown under the wheel and crushed. The boiler finally ran into Cremer's saloon at Amsterdam avenue and 133d street. Olive was taken to the J. Hood Wright

Olive was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital in an express wagon. Father Barringer of the Church of the Annuncia-tion, 131st street and Broadway, jumped on the wagon and administered the last rites to the dying man. Olive died as he was being carried into the hospital.

He leaves a widow and three small chil-en. Mrs. Olive and one child had been up to visit him ten minutes before he was killed.

I'wo large plate glass windows and several smaller ones in the saloon were smashed. Parts of the sidewalk were torn up and strips ripped from the build-ing. The horses freed themselves from ing. The horses freed themselves from the truck just as it landed against the house and they continued through 133d street until caught a few blocks away.

GAYNOR AND GREENE GAIN POINT

Another Stay of Proceedings Pending Hearing of An Appeal.

MONTREAL, Que., June :0.-Gaynor and Greene have gained another stay of proceedings by a decision to-day of Judge Ouimet, who ordered that he had the right to consider an appeal for a habeas corpus case and ordered that the case be brought before him, granting an adjournment until July 30.

Counsel for Gaynor and Greene announced that they would appeal to the Privy Council against the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Canada refusing an appeal.

PREFERS LANSTON MACHINES. Public Printer Palmer Testifies That They

Do Better Work and More of It. WASHINGTON, June 30 .- At the opening session to-day of the investigation into the purchase of typesetting machines for the Government Printing Office, conducted by the Committee of Five appointed by President Roosevelt to investigate generally Doesn't Have to Let Himself Out. the business methods of the Government departments, Public Printer Palmer was the chief witness. Mr. Palmer testified that the Mergenthaler typesetting machines were good for newspaper work, but that the Lanston did more work and that it was of a better quality. He denied that he had contracted for more Lanston machines than he could place in the printing office. Of the 72 Lanston machines contracted for, he intended to put 45 on specification work at the Fair Grounds at 10:50 A. M. and the rest in a division where there were already ten Lanston machines. Mr. Palmer quoted Chief Clerk Bryan of the printing office, who had been foreman of printing for more than thirty years, as confirming his judgment as to the superiority of the Lanstons.

LEAVESTHE CATHOLIC CHURCH. John Boyle O'Rellly's Daughter Would Not Obey the Archbishop.

Boston, June 30 .- Agnes Boyle O'Reilly have been to the merry if Mr. Early had a daughter of John Boyle O'Reilly, the Irish patriot and author, was married at 9 o'clock resterday morning to William Ernest Hocking, a professor of philosophy at Phillips Andover Academy, by the Rev. Samuel M. Crothers, D. D., a Unitarian clergyman of Cambridge. The ceremony ook place at the home of the bride in Brookline. None of the bride's family was present except one sister.

> Miss O'Reilly was a Catholic, but there were things in the ritual that she could not be reconciled to and when the time of marriage draw near she went to Archbishop Williams and explained why she did not believe in all of the Catholic faith.

> The Archbishop told her that unless she would sign a document stating that she would bring up her children in the pure Catholic faith he would not permit a Catholic clergyman to perform her marriage ceremony. Miss O'Reilly refused to sign and left the faith.

AN AIRSHIP THAT BEHAVES.

GOES SIX MILES IN FIFTY MIN-UTES FAR FROM EARTH.

Speeds to the Roof of a Tail Building in Toledo, Facing a High Wind, and Returns to the Exact Starting Place With the Triumphant Knabenshue, Inventor. Toledo, Ohio, June 30 .- A. Roy Knabenshue, the Toledo aeronaut, to-day made a successful and remarkable flight in his airship. He started from the Fair Grounds at 9:35 A. M. and landed on the roof of the Spitzer Building, ten stories tall, in the heart of the downtown district, at 10 o'clock, the distance being three miles. He started on the return trip at 10:26 A. M. and arrived

On the downtown trip the ship beat directly into a head wind which was steady and strong. On the return the ship was blown a mile beyond the Fair Grounds, and tacked back. Not a hitch occurred in the operation of the ship, and Knabenshue was in full control. When he stared off he slanted at an angle and rose slowly Above the trees there was a strong wind and it became stronger as the airship soared

Knabenshue maneuvered the ship, letting the wind behind carry it back slightly until he had attained the position he de-Then he bore off downtown directly in the face of the high wind. He rose slowly until he had left the earth least a mile behind. He kept the big airship, now almost a speck, against the clouds, steadily boring into the teeth of the wind, which at that height was blowing a gale.

All that appeared to the thousands and housands of excited watchers on the ground, the housetops and the roofs of buildings a mile below him was the little dot of the balloon and a short streak under it that was all that could be seen of the

Again and again Knabenshue let the wind carry him off a few points, but every time he threw the big rudder hard over the big herringlike ship turned about. He kept the ship in the air until he had passed beyond the Spitzer Building and over the roof of the Gardner Building. Then he let the wind carry him slowly back. He eased off the engine and the ship settled

Finally he stopped the machinery altogether and down he came into the arms of the big crowd waiting to haul in his ship and to grasp his hand. His perfect control of the air craft was illustrated at the end of the return trip. He came down steadily, and when about 150 feet above the ground he steered the ship in an almost perfect circle and made it settle softly in the exact spot from which he had started an hour before and exactly between two rows of sandbags that had been dropped off the frame at the start.

Knabenshue declares that his present ship is far superior to others he has navigated, that it is easier managed and that he has solved the problem of aerial navigation. He will make another flight at the Fair Grounds on Sunday afternoon

MAIL CARRYING TANGLE. Drivers Not Likely to Strike, but Old and

New Contractors Lock Horns. The threatened strike of mail drivers who carry the mails between the Grand Central Station, steamship piers, railroad ferries and the General Postoffice did not materialize last night. Travers, who owns the other half interest, is in actual possession of the stables, horses and wagons. Mr. Wolcott, it is understood, expected to acquire enough stock to control the company from Mr. Travers at a reasonable price, inasmuch as Mr. Travers's outfit was useless except to deliver the mall under Walcott's contract. Mr. Travers refused to sell, however, except at what Walcott alleges is a prohibitive price. The demands of the drivers for better pay and hours came on top of this.

After Wolcott's attorneys had attempted in vain to secure an injunction to compel Travers to allow Wolcott to use the New York Mail Company's wagons the agree-ment was reached. Postmaster Willcox, it is understood, will go to Washington before Thursday and have the tangle straightened out.

RUSSIAN MONARCHY TUMBLING. Prince Kropotkin Says the People Have

Reached the Limit of Suffering. Prince Peter Kropotkin, in a letter thanking the Russian Jews of New York for the second $500 to aid the revolutionary movement in Russia, says:

"Beginnings are always hard, but when the seed of our teaching sprouts all those to whom the freedom of the Russian people is dear will thank you for your help. absolute rule of the Russian monarchy is tumbling to pieces, the old forms of life totter and the new break away through the barriers of ages, manifesting the power of construction and upbuilding of the new life among educated workers as among the peasantry.

"The terrible war, the compulsory necessity of contributing toward its fearful expense, the great poverty of our people and the need to arm for the struggle with the Government-how shall the Russian people stand all that? Only a popular uprising all over the country, the appropriation of the land and all that can feed and shelter the people--that alone can save the beggared, poverty stricken people of Russia, raise it out of its needs and its poverty.

"And yet there are so many nurses and duennas among the people, so many clamoring, 'Don't do this, and don't do that, you cannot accomplish much by force.' Even so speaketh our science, the science of socialism. Few. but few. dare to say, as Danton said, 'Have the courage, the courage to do and to act, the courage to think and to act.' And it is necessary that the few should encourage the mighty of the people to think and to act mightily. It is necessary that the few shall be with the people in all their struggles and plant everywhere the hope in revolutionary destruction of the old and the responsibility of the new forms of life."

BISLEY RIFLE TEAM RECEIVED

W. W. ATTERBURY,

General Manager.

AT BUCKINGHAM PALACE. The Uniforms Worn by New York's Amateur Soldiers Much Admired by His Majesty -Felicitations Exchanged-Glorious Sight Provided for a London Crowd.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, June 30.-King Edward received Buckingham Palace to-day the eight officers and six men of the Seventh Regiment of New York, who are here to contend at Bisley for the trophy offered by the Colonel of the Queen's Westminsters. The reception pleased his Majesty as well as it did the men of the Seventh. Obviously the King was struck with the characteristic uniform of the Seventh, and pleasantly announced his admiration before the guests left Buckingham Palace. The King had expected that the ceremony of inspection would come after the trooping of the colors on the Horse Guards parade in honor of the birthday of the King. This was postponed on account of the rain and the King notified the rifle team that he would receive them at midday. In full uniform and with arms and equipment they drove to the gates of the palace. There, formed in column of twos, they proceeded by the main entrance into the ballroom, where Major John H. Beacom, the military attaché at the American Embassy, in full uniform, inspected them. Ambassador Whitelaw Reid joined them there. After a wait of twenty minutes, due to the King being occupied with his ministers, the team marched in single file into the Oak room, where we ethe King and several lords-in-waiting. The King was attired in morning dress. When the members of the team had been drawn up, the officers saluted. His Majesty, in a few appropriate words, complimented Capt. McLean on the men's appearance. He asked how long they had been here, and how long they would stay. He regretted that the weather had prevented the trooping of the colors. He hoped they would enjoy their visit and have a pleasant time at Bisley. The King went down the line, and each man was personally presented to him. He shook the hand of each man heartily. Capt. McLean, on behalf of Capt. Appleton and the Seventh Regiment, thanked the King for his courtesy in receiving representatives of the regiment. As the team left the palace the guard turned out and saluted, and the salute was returned. Through some mistake, no carriages were waiting, so the men marched in column of twos through St. James Park, to the great delight of the crowds that had assembled to see the trooping of the colors.

ONE LIFE LOST IN HOTEL FIRE.

A Man Goes Back Into the Burning Building After Rescuing a Number of Guests. UTICA, June 30 .- Victor Vincent's hotel at Hinckley was destroyed by fire to-day and Charles Hechtz, 40 years old, lost his life. He had escaped from the flames and was seen outside of the building, but it is supposed that, seized with a sudden fit of insanity, he went back into the burning structure and so met his death. There were about twenty-five guests in the hotel when the fire was discovered, and the proprietor went through the house rousing the sleepers. Hechtz helped in rousing the sleepers. Heretz helped in the rescue of a number of guest's from the upper stories, all the time, however, acting as though in a frenzy. When the fire was extinguished he was found seated in a chair in the lower hall, his body partly charred. property loss will amount to about
